“Our philosophy has not changed since the inception of the firm. We believe the basis of successful investment performance lies in research and analysis of sectors and securities and careful portfolio construction, not interest rate speculation. We believe that market-timing strategies are volatile and can produce inconsistent results.

Our internal investment strategy and risk committees determine the relative value outlook for sectors and sub-sectors, which our Portfolio managers subsequently implement with respect to security selection, timing and execution, and in accordance with portfolio investment objectives and guidelines.”
